Date: August 11, 2004

Mayor Bob Young today joined the leadership of the US Conference of Mayors in issuing an agenda to support America's cities in this fall's elections. "The document is a bi-partisan approach to bring issues important to city officials to the forefront of the federal elections," Mayor Young said in Chicago, where the mayors are gathered. Mayor Young chairs the Conference's Energy Committee and serves on the Advisory Board. "The strength of our approach is encouraging public/private partnerships to address these important challenges," Mayor Young said. The agenda focuses on three areas: jobs, infrastructure, and Homeland security. The text of the document can be found at www.usmayors.org
